

Ischgl brings folk rock'n'roll to the ski area

Andreas Gabalier will be keeping his promise "I sing a Liad für di" (I sing a song for you) at the Top of the Mountain Spring Concert on the Ischgl Idalp on 14th April 2024. And he is sure to perform more than just one song for winter sports enthusiasts. Admission to the open-air concert is included in the ski pass.

Gabalier's "Hodiodiooodiooodie – Happy Hour, mitten in der Nocht" will quickly become "Happy Hour, in the middle of the Ischgl ski area" on 14th April 2024! From 1 pm the folk rock'n'roller will be rocking the legendary Ischgl Stage 2,320 m above sea level at the Top of the Mountain Spring Concert. The talented singer promises a buzzing atmosphere and hits such as "Hulapalu", "I sing a Liad für di", "Verdammt lang her" and "Sie". ### Andreas Gabalier

His trademarks? Lederhose, sunglasses and a handkerchief – an Andreas Gabalier performance would not be complete without these three accessories. But it is not just his appearance that sets the musician, born 1984, apart from other industry greats: Gabalier's attachment to his homeland is as present in his songs as is the influence of American legends such as Johnny Cash or Elvis Presley. This has given the unique folk rock'n'roller his very own style, which has helped him achieve maximum fame. Gabalier's seven studio albums including "Home Sweet Home" (2013), "Mountain Man" (2015) and "Vergiss mein nicht" (2018) regularly reach gold and platinum status in Germany and Austria. He has sung his way into the hearts of fans with hits such as "I sing a Liad für di" (2009) and "Hulapalu" (2015). In addition, Gabalier has been recognised with countless awards such as the Diamond Award for hit single "Hulapalu" with over 1 million sales, the Karl Valentin Order and in 2016 even the honour of being the first Austrian to give an MTV Unplugged performance.
